Columbus Center Fears Edict May Mean End Of
Plasma Program

Circleville community's contribution of blood to help save lives of men in all branches of Uncle Sam's service will be continued despite orders issued by Office of Price Administration officials to cease issuing special processed food ration points for feeding of volunteers after blood donation. The state-wide order has been sent to the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board, thus preventing the local board from issuing ration points for use at the blood donor center.

Franklin county Red Cross was up in arms Monday because of the OPA order. Officials there told Hal Dean, chairman of the Pickaway county blood donor organization, that the action may be sounding the death knell for the center in Columbus. This center operates continuously and in need of ration points at all times to provide meat and vegetables for persons who have just given a pint of their blood.

Local Feeding Assured

"Regardless of the OPA order," Mr. Dean said, "we intend to carry on the best way we can, and we intend to feed all persons who give blood." Mr. Dean said that food will be obtained in one manner or another, "either by begging from individuals or by having blood donors contribute some of their own points," the chairman declared.

Clyde McBee, OPA food rationing officer, told Franklin county Red Cross officials that OPA has never felt that it was necessary to issue processed foods or meats and fats rations for the purpose of feeding blood donors.

Coffee and sugar points will be issued to the Red Cross units, he said.

McBee Opposed

Red Cross authorities differ with Mr. McBee's stand, claiming that persons who give a pint of blood need immediate nourishment. Research conducted by Red Cross proves need for nourishment, all who give blood going without food for from four to six hours, and nearly every donor being weakened somewhat by his donation.

Plasma made from the blood donated in Columbus and in nearly all central Ohio communities goes to all war theatres and has been a great factor in the low death rate among men wounded in action.

Next visit of the blood unit mobile outfit will be July 26 and 27, Mr. Dean said Monday. The dates were fixed after he telephoned headquarters of the unit in Co-

Duce, Aides Act To Calm War Fears

Fascist Leaders Meet To Sound Appeal For National Discipline

LONDON, July 12—Carlo Scorza, general secretary of the Italian Fascist party, today called a meeting of the party's foremost leaders to appeal to the nation to "maintain discipline" in the face of an imminent invasion of the Italian mainland, the News Chronicle reported in a Zurich dispatch.

The Daily Mail meanwhile said Benito Mussolini urged King Victor Emmanuel to address the Italian people in order to "allay anxiety" over the Allied invasion of Sicily.

The London paper also reported, in a dispatch from "the Italian frontier," that the Italian high command turned down an offer from Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to assume charge of the defense of Corsica and the Italian-occupied French Riviera.

Swiss dispatches quoted Axis sources as declaring the United Nations had concentrated 1,000,000 troops in the Near East for an imminent thrust into the Balkans.

France meanwhile was indicated as the next objective of an Allied landing assault. An Algerian "spokesman" said: "at the same time a second front was established on the European continent (presumably referring to the invasion of Sicily) a secret front in France received detailed orders from the Allied command."

A fighting French news agency dispatch from Ankara said invasion "jitters" in Bulgaria have speeded the evacuation of important archives from Sofia.

Anti-aircraft batteries already have been set up to protect Sofia, Varna, Bourgas and Philippopolis, said the dispatch, which declared "revolution seems likely as soon as hostilities touch the country."

Rommel, who was believed to be commander-in-chief of Axis forces in the Balkans, according to the Ankara dispatch, was said to have moved his headquarters from Sofia to Gornabasta in fear of Allied bombing attacks on Sofia.

CURTISS WRIGHT DENIES TRUMAN BOARD CHARGES

COLUMBUS, July 12—Vigorously denying that the Columbus plant of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. has wasted money and fostered widespread idleness by workers, J. P. Davey, general manager, asserted today that "time and the test of battle" will prove the worth of the Curtiss Helldiver.

Davey's statement followed sharp criticism of the plant by the Truman War Investigating committee which declared that "not one Helldiver has yet been produced which the Navy considers usable as a combat plane."

"This plant was requested to design and build a dive bomber far superior in range, speed and bomb capacity to any single-engine dive bomber in service," Davey said. "Such an airplane has been designed and built."

In reply to the committee's condemnation of the company for advertising the plane as the "world's best dive bomber," Davey declared: "The often-quoted statements that the Helldiver is the best dive bomber in the world did not originate with Curtiss-Wright. They are the statements of Navy officials and impartial military aviation experts. We take issue with committee statements which were directed at the personnel of the Columbus plant."

Davey added that the complaints of widespread inactivity were untrue at the time of the committee's investigation five months ago and are untrue now.

WHEAT STATE SENATORS SCAN GRAIN PROBLEM

Solons Meet With Jones To Press Demand For Hoist In Flour Price

FIRE DIRECTED AT OPA

Serious Shortage Seen For Next Year Unless Action Is Prompt

WASHINGTON, July 12—Ten wheat state senators, led by Sen. Clyde Reed (R) Kan., today met with War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson and Director of War Mobilization James Byrnes in an effort to solve the tangled wheat problem.

Seriously alarmed over less-than-parity prices for wheat, created by recent house action withdrawing soil conservation and parity payments for the grain, the senators are demanding a boost in the price ceiling on flour.

The government has asked wheat farmers to plant 70,000,000 acres of wheat in 1944—18,000,000 acres above the 1943 planting.

But, say the senators, any farmer "would be foolish" to plant more wheat when he "is a long way from being assured of parity price."

Meanwhile, Reed points out that the expected July 1, 1944 carry-over of 184,524,000 bushels of wheat "is a dangerously short reserve in time of war."

"As the shortage of other foods becomes more pronounced," Reed said, "more and more reliance must be placed on wheat."

"If our obligations to other countries are to be met, abundant supplies must be provided. A reserve of only 185,000,000 bushels, with the possibility of a short crop next year is a matter of anxiety."

Reed blasted the OPA for "preserving a sub-normal price of bread at its present level" by fixing "an artificially low ceiling on flour which in turn holds the market price of wheat at a point about 21 cents below parity."

So long as the farmer received a parity payment which amounts to about 13 cents a bushel plus an average of about nine cents a bushel from soil conservation payments, the wheat grower got along all right, Reed said.

"Unless we do something about it—and soon—we'll be faced with a more than serious wheat shortage in 1944," Reed warned.

ALLIES TEACHING HITLER HOW TO MAKE INVASION

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 12—Despite the fact that the real battle of Sicily is yet to come, Hitler is probably "chewing a rug" today as he is compelled to witness the successful Allied air-borne and sea invasion of Sicily.

That is more than he attempted against England after the 1940 abortive fevers and especially after the bloody price he paid in 1941 for Crete, where the flower of his parachute and glider forces was wiped out.

Hide it as he may from the public in the Axis countries, the Allies demonstrated once again in Sicily that they are masters in organizing land, sea and air units for a clock-like invasion offensive. And this throws a prophetic light upon the European continent, separated from Sicily only by the straits of Messina, the "trench only two miles wide."

Allied gliders, slid down out of the misty night onto Sicilian targets without great losses. Parachutists followed without becoming clay pigeons for Axis marksmen, despite the numerous anti-aircraft guns, machine guns and searchlights.

War Map Shows Objectives Of Allied Invaders

OPENING the "Battle Of Europe," American, British and Canadian troops have landed on the island of Sicily, just off the Italian mainland. Definite details of the invasion were withheld, but it our forces landed on the East and South coasts. Axis was said to be rushing reinforcements across the narrow Messina strait which separates island from Italy. Map shows island's distance from Africa and principal towns.

ITALIANS GIVE AID TO BRITISH

War Prisoners Cheerfully Help Unload Supplies For Invaders

AN ALLIED BEACHHEAD IN SICILY (Delayed)—Italian prisoners cheerfully helped British infantrymen unload stores and ammunition from landing craft only a few hours after the Britons captured this beachhead.

It was exactly midnight when the British first approached the beach. The sky was illuminated by the flashes of bombs, dozens of fiercely-burning fires and glaring flares which hung suspended in the void above, like fairy lamps.

The wind had risen as tank-landing craft, trawlers and motor torpedo boats wallowed and plunged in the trough of the sea while escorting destroyers circled vigilantly.

(Editor's Note: The mention of tank-landing craft is the first indication received in London that the Allies had taken tanks ashore. The Daily Express military expert commented that it must be expected that the American-made Gen. Sherman as well as its Churchill tanks, would be landed in Sicily.)

The troop craft slithered over the tops of waves and took some time to reach the shore. A searchlight ashore suddenly lit up and swung toward them—then miraculously went out just as its beam reached the craft.

To the right, where other assault craft already had hit the beach, streams of red tracers seared the blackness of the night.

The thunder of surf grew louder as a small island was passed. "Get ready to land," whispered the young officer in charge. The forward gangway was swung down and the troops, heavily laden with their kits and weapons, plunged into the surging sea and stumbled ashore.

Led by their colonel, they moved ahead calmly in Indian file. Suddenly the silence was broken by the sharp crack of machine-gun fire. The bullets sang overhead and whanged into the metal sides of the assault craft. The boat

Steel Output Slashed Again As Result Of Pennsylvania Strikes

PITTSBURGH, July 12—With a quarter of a million tons of ingot steel already lost to the war effort, production officials today gloomily reported that steel output is scheduled for another five percent drop during the coming week as a result of the prolonged "outlaw" strike of 23,000 UMW miners in Western Pennsylvania.

Statisticians for the industry disclosed the best that could be looked for was 94 percent of theoretical capacity, but expressed fears that even this curtailed output might not be maintained.

Representatives of the Coal Operators Association revealed that approximately 100,000 tons of bituminous coal are being lost daily because of the shutdown of 26 mines, most of them "captive" pits operated by steel companies in Fayette county.

An over-all review of the picture disclosed that 250,000 tons of steel had been irrevocably lost through the present wildcat strike and the authorized work stoppages which preceded it in June.

An indication of the severity of lack of coke was seen in the announcement that Carnegie-Illinois' huge Clairton by-products works, which supplies many of the Pittsburgh plants with operating materials, had been compelled to go on a 50 percent of capacity schedule.

Similarly, 13 United States Steel Corporation blast furnaces in the Monongahela valley were idle today, and it appeared likely several additional stacks will halt operations within a day or two.

Meantime, district and international officers of the United Mine Workers of America went into the strongholds of the insurgent strikers in the Brownsville-California sector in a last-minute effort to persuade the coal diggers to go back into the pits before the government applies the newly-enacted Smith-Connally anti-strike law.

Pickets were maintaining a 24-hour vigil at many of the pits in Fayette county.

UMW officials openly feared the break-up of the union by the federal grand jury, which launches an inquiry into picketing activities Wednesday, orders wholesale arrests of the pickets, many of whom are women and children.

The board decided this hardly was an essential war industry and confiscated both the books.

Congress May Come Running Back If Authority Is Again Flaunted

WASHINGTON, July 12—Refusal of high federal officials to testify, by Presidential order, at an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission today brought warning that another such instance will bring congress running back to Washington.

"It is surprising that the chief executive of the nation should advise men to defy a committee in either house of congress and indicative of an attitude that the President wants to govern with absolutism over the people," said Sen. Chapman Revercomb (R) W. Va.

"For high officials of the Army and Navy and the Bureau of the Budget to be directed to ignore a subpoena issued by the house makes it appear that congress made a mistake in taking a Summer recess."

CISSIE LOFTUS, FAMOUS STAR OF STAGE, DIES

NEW YORK, July 12—The curtain was down today on another great stage career following the death of Cecelia (Cissie) Loftus who, for more than 50 years, starred in comedy and drama alike.

Just past her 66th birthday, she was found dead in her hotel room early today, the victim of a heart attack.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, the daughter of a famous theatrical family, she made her debut in a London music hall at the age of 15. In 1895 she came to America to appear in vaudeville, but soon graduated to drama, starring in the "Merchant of Venice" among many other Broadway productions. A son, Peter, theatrical manager in London, survives.

RAPID ADVANCE ENGULFS TEN ISLAND CITIES

Italian Key Points Fall Under Cover Of Heavy Plane Bombardment

TROOPS POUR INTO GAP

More Fighters And Guns Landed In Support Of Battling Units

BULLETIN ALLIED HEADQUARTERS SICILY, July 12—The ancient city of Syracuse fell into Allied hands at 9 p. m. Saturday. The United Nations now control the suburb of Floridia and the escarpment.

All positions are firmly established. British assault troops captured Syracuse.

Americans took Licata, sharing with British and Canadians the fruits of spectacular victory.

Observers reporting on the battle situation all agreed that Sicilian natives were according a friendly reception to the invading troops, and enemy armed resistance has not yet reached major proportions.

BULLETIN LONDON, July 12—The Morocco radio today reported Allied capture of the enemy air-drome at Catania on the Sicilian east coast.

BULLETIN ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 12—An Allied hospital ship was sunk off the Sicilian coast Saturday night by enemy bombers although at anchor and fully lighted, headquarters announced today. Four hundred wounded aboard were transferred successfully to other vessels.

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, July 12—The Navy announced today that American bombers intercepted four Japanese cargo ships apparently headed toward Kiska in the Aleutians, sank one, left another in a sinking condition and damaged the remaining two. The action took place July 10 280 miles southwest of Holtz bay on Attu island.

Bombers participating in the attack included Liberators, Mitchells and Catalina flying boats.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 12—Capture of the strategic southeast Sicilian city of Syracuse and numerous other key points of Axis defense on the invaded island was announced officially today.

Syracuse, itself an ancient battleground and pivotal point of the whole enemy coastal system between Catania and previously-occupied Cape Passero, fell to the Allied armies under cover of a terrific aerial bombardment which demoralized Axis ability to counter-attack.

Along with Syracuse, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower listed the following cities and towns seized by the Allies in a series of incredibly rapid-fire advances:

Licata, strategic south coastal town situated about midway along the southern reaches of the island.

Pozzallo, a few miles west of Cape Passero, which straddles the road and railway line to Ragusa, where heavy fighting has been reported.

Gela, site of an important Axis airfield 15 miles east of Licata. Several other towns of varying importance, including Avola, also have been taken.

Two thousand prisoners already have been captured in the (Continued on Page Two) successful operations placing Allied forces in firm control of the southeastern section of Sicily. Other towns scooped up as the gigantic Allied army landed by sea and air in the greatest operation of its kind in all history included Pachino, Scoglitti, Ispica, Rosolini and Noto.

The communique announcing seizure of these ten municipalities fortified by the Axis to safeguard the continent of Europe itself from attack followed by a few moments an earlier statement describing violent Allied air attacks throughout yesterday in support of the ground operations which cost the enemy 45 planes.

The latest statement said: "The task of disembarking troops and their equipment on all beaches of Sicily continues according to plan."

Weather Improves
"Weather conditions have improved, and enemy interference from the air has been on a somewhat increased scale."

"Defended areas near the coastal town of Pozzallo, 12 miles west of Cape Correnti, and the railway line between Syracuse and Ragusa were bombarded last night by our destroyers."

"Surrender of Pozzallo was accepted by the commanding officer of a destroyer during the early afternoon of Sunday."

"Our ground forces continue to make progress. Seven enemy counterattacks with tanks have been repulsed and at least 2,000 prisoners have been taken. It can now be stated the following major ports and towns have been captured by our forces:

"Syracuse, Licata, Pozzallo, Gela, Avola, Pachino, Scoglitti, Ispica, Rosolini and Noto."

Capture of these ten cities and towns followed Allied seizure of three vital enemy airports in the course of ever-widening operations by American, British and Canadian troops landed constantly during the last 72 hours.

Allied planes maintained a constant and systematic divebombing of Axis troops road concentrations and tipped up enemy rail lines to facilitate the task of invasion."

It was newly disclosed that the P51 Mustang, although primarily a fighter, has been equipped with dive-brackets, making it possible to adapt that speedy plane to all sorts of raiding uses.

Reinforcements Land
Reports from returning pilots emphasized that landing of reinforcements continues without letup. Capt. Jonathan Routs of Abilene, Tex., said that American craft are "as busy as waterbugs," constantly unloading men and material on the beaches.

Lt. Glen Waddell of Billings, Montana, reported a large fire inland and told of a heavy artillery duel, while Lt. Edward Wardrip of Nebraska City, Neb., saw enemy transports packing many roads leading to the south.

Editor's Note: A Reuter dispatch from Algiers said the first real clash is expected shortly between Axis reinforcements moving south. This message said a full-scale artillery exchange at some undisclosed point has been in progress since sunrise Sunday.

Picture Of Fight
Reliable information reaching headquarters from official reporters and correspondents who accompanied the amphibious task forces which blasted open the highroad to Europe gave this picture of the military situation:

1—Allied troops are pouring through a 100-mile gap torn into Sicily's coastal defenses, meeting various degrees of resistance.

2—At least three key air-dromes in the southeastern corner of the island are now in Allied hands.

3—The entire Cape Passero area is firmly held by Allied troops following a junction between British and Canadian forces at a point 55 miles from the Cape.

4—New landing operations are in progress, including one reported by the Algiers radio in the vicinity of Marsala on the Sicilian west coast. Allied divisional headquarters already have been established on the island, this broadcast said.

5—Tanks as well as heavy mobile artillery have been landed to bolster the first large detachments dropped by parachute and brought in by silently swooping gliders in the hours of darkness.

There is every indication the Allied theatre of operations is growing more extensive by the hour.

One man's OPINION

By Walter Kierman

Well, the case of OPA versus leg of lamb has been removed from the docket.

The chief witness ate the evidence.

The complainant was a woman who said she had been charged for six pounds of lamb, but only got four.

The OPA sent six lawyers . . . one for each pound of lamb . . . into the hearing and for a moment it looked like the defendant might swing for his crime.

The big dramatic scene came when the court said "and now we will weigh the meat."

As one man the OPA legal battery turned to their witness. She didn't have the meat. She ate it.

The ruling was that a complainant must come into court not only with clean hands, but also with an empty stomach.

That is a New York ruling and need not apply in states west of the OPA.

The moral of the story is always produce the corpus delicti no matter how delicious.

Thought for the day: Nothing special.

DAMAGE SUIT DROPPED

Damage action for $7,700 against Mrs. Rosa Rader, administratrix of the estate of the late J. Cleve Rader, was dismissed on common pleas court Monday by attorneys for Mrs. Bertha Russell of Ironton. The suit was brought following a collision south of Circleville in which Mr. Rader suffered fatal injuries.

ground resistance, the Axis ordered heavy opposition in the air. Fifteen separate enemy attacks were made against Allied fighter-bombers raiding the marshalling yards, warehouse and storage areas of Marsala. Seven Axis craft were destroyed in these engagements.

Total Allied air losses during the day were only nine craft.

In the Pacific, Allied bombers rained a total of 176 tons of bombs on Japanese bases all along a 1,300 on Japanese bases all along a 1,300-mile arc from Timor island in the Netherlands East Indies to the Solomon islands as Allied warships balked a Jap attempt to reinforce the Salamaua base in New Guinea by sinking four enemy barges in Huon gulf.

In the devastating air raids, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fliers pounded Kupang on Timor island, west of New Guinea, the New Britain enemy base at Rabaul, the important Kahili airfield in the Bul-Faisi area of the Northern Solomons, Vila airdrome on Kolombangara island across the Kula gulf from New Georgia, and Japanese troops and installations near the Allied-menaced pivotal air base of Munda in New Georgia, among other targets.

Besides the aerial pounding of Munda, which is besieged on all sides by American ground troops, a dispatch from U. S. navy headquarters in the South Pacific told of continued bombardment of the Jap base by American land artillery from captured Rendova and nearby islands. The dispatch said the fall of Munda was expected momentarily.

The German offensive in Russia roared into its second week on the 165-mile Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front, with the Nazis still scoring no major breakthrough. The Russians counter-attacked at the northern end of the battlefield near Orel and recaptured two villages.

Despite the loss of an estimated 44,000 troops killed, all Nazi field Marshal Guenther Von Kluge's armies had to show for their furious seven-day offensive was a small wedge driven into Soviet lines along the Belgorod-Kursk road, where they were stopped cold by the Red army.

The ferocity of the continued fighting all along the blazing front was graphically high-lighted by a Moscow announcement which said 162 Nazi tanks were knocked out yesterday, making 2,550 destroyed in a week. Destruction of 31 more German planes brought the week's total to 1,068 Nazi aircraft destroyed.

In one sector, Moscow reported, 2,000 Nazis were annihilated when the Russians repulsed a German attack led by 400 tanks.

Nothing has yet developed to indicate a full-scale counter-attack by the enemy. The air attacks carried out throughout yesterday were directed against Axis airfields on Sicily and on the Italian mainland, as well as against mechanized troop concentrations.

While there was still some question as to the full extent of

However, Mr. Dean said, the unit will be in Circleville exactly eight weeks after its second visit. He added also that a fourth visit would be eight weeks after the July 26-27 trip.

Since 332 of the persons who gave their blood during the last visit have already volunteered to make additional donations no registration will be conducted this time. For many of the persons registered the donation will be their third.

Red Cross doesn't want so much blood from Circleville this trip, the chairman declared, only 140 pints to be taken each day. Last visit the blood donor crew was over-worked by the continued influx of donors.

NOGGLE WRITES FROM PRISON CAMP IN ITALY

Private Lester (Doc) Noggle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Noggle of Scioto township, is "safe and sound" in an axis prison camp, a letter received Saturday by his parents declares.

Young Noggle was captured in African fighting early in February, the card received Saturday being the first word the Noggles have received direct from their son since February 8, the February letter having been written before his capture.

The communication came on a card typewritten in red ink.

"Safe and sound in a transit camp in Italy. Letters following. Love. Going to Germany."

Young Noggle is one of 31 Pickaway county youths taken prisoner in the southern Tunisia drive of General Rommel. Most of the youths were held at first by the Italians, but have since been removed to Germany.

MARRIED MEN INCLUDED IN AUGUST DRAFT

Pickaway county Selective Service board announced Monday that the August call for draftees will include many married men, although no married men with children will be taken. This statement corrects a report published two weeks ago which said that no married men would be taken during August. At that time the report should have been "no married men with children" instead of just "no married men."

The draft board pointed out that the August call will be about the same size as July's, although no definite figures may be announced. The July contingent, however, will number somewhat more than 50 men, many of whom will be married men with wives only as dependents. The July group will leave during the next week.

backed out a bit, then barged ahead to a more promising spot to unload heavy equipment.

Jeeps and motorcycles were ridden through the breakers and pushed up on the beach while men stumbled back and forth with boxes of ammunition.

As far as one could see, tank-landing craft chugged toward the beaches while warships slammed shells at enemy positions.

The ships altered course and pulled aboard nine nearly exhausted paratroopers who had been in the water since 11 o'clock the previous night, when they landed just short of the shore.

This landing party suffered no casualties. Every man from every ship was landed safely on the beaches.

200 AT SCIOTO U. B. SERVICES; BISHOP SPEAKS

Two hundred persons participated in the centennial celebration Sunday of the Scioto Chapel United Brethren church at Robtown when Bishop A. R. Clippinger of Dayton spoke at morning and afternoon services.

During the morning, the bishop's subject was "Let's Not Forget the Past" and in the afternoon he spoke on "Digging New Wells."

The Rev. O. W. Smith, church pastor, was host during the day. A basket dinner was served at noon after which a community meeting was held.

The Rev. J. E. Huston of Circleville and the Rev. Earl Anderson of Columbus, a Robtown native, spoke in the afternoon.

Music during the day included solos by Mrs. Alice Ward and Mrs. Fannie Brooks of the church and by Charles Carter's quartet from Williamsport.

The entire day's event was a major success.

Revercomb said he was heartily in accord with the program of Sen. Ellison D. "Cotton Ed" Smith, (D) S. C., for congress to remain on the job until the very end of the war.

"What is there about the Federal Communications Commission to be hidden and which the chief executive does not want told, or that which is contrary to the public interest?" Revercomb asked. "Men in congress have the public interest at heart just as much as the President."

The house committee is investigating the FCC control of radio stations and had demanded that certain records be produced before it by James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the navy; Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, and Harold D. Smith, director of the budget.

All informed the committee that they had been specifically directed by the President not to testify or furnish the information.

"Anything that forbids investigation into control of an instrument such as the press or radio is a step toward suppression of free speech," Revercomb said. "When that is lost every right of the individual and of others to protect his rights is lost."

Revercomb said he never did favor adjournment of congress although he voted for it on the ground that some members had not been home for three years to see their constituents and find out what the people wanted.

MALCOLM E. DEAN DIES IN COLUMBUS HOSPITAL

Malcolm E. Dean, 73, former Jackson township resident, died Sunday at 7 a. m. in the State Hospital, Columbus, where he had been a patient for several years.

Mr. Dean was a member of the Robtown United Brethren church and had served for some years as its Sunday School superintendent.

OCD POLICEMEN HAVE AUTHORITY, HERBERT RULES

Auxiliary police of the Civilian Defense Corps have full police powers during emergencies, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert declared today in a ruling handed to Columbus authorities. The ruling affects all Ohio communities where special deputies have been appointed by sheriff or mayor.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, whose auxiliary police unit is regarded as one of the best in Ohio, has numerous members of his organization deputized without pay. All have been bonded, and, according to the attorney general's ruling, may assume full police authority during actual or threatened air raids.

The opinion, given to the Ohio State Council for Defense, declared that auxiliary police when so appointed as deputies have authority to enter buildings, using force if necessary, to put out lights.

The house committee is investigating the FCC control of radio stations and had demanded that certain records be produced before it by James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the navy; Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, and Harold D. Smith, director of the budget.

All informed the committee that they had been specifically directed by the President not to testify or furnish the information.

"Anything that forbids investigation into control of an instrument such as the press or radio is a step toward suppression of free speech," Revercomb said. "When that is lost every right of the individual and of others to protect his rights is lost."

Revercomb said he never did favor adjournment of congress although he voted for it on the ground that some members had not been home for three years to see their constituents and find out what the people wanted.

The surprise, these quarters said, probably will lie in the choice of the new objective as well as the daring methods that will be employed in the establishment of a European bridgehead.

Stimson, it was revealed, will confer with American generals and other service commanders on subjects "too secret to be entrusted even to cipher cables."

The war secretary, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Scales, the War Department's public relations chief, and his special assistant, Harvey H. Bundy, landed at a British airfield yesterday. He was welcomed by Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Deyers, American commander in Europe; W. Averell Harriman, Lend-Lease administrator in Britain, and a party of American military and naval officers.

Stimson decided to spend today quietly in the British capital. A spokesman for his party said "he is getting acquainted with some American army officers here and seeing a few other people; otherwise he is resting today."

The war secretary, who is expected to inspect American troops in England, is scheduled to hold his first press conference in London later in the week.

Battle of Europe Opens As Allied Forces Invade Sicily

ONLY short distance from the Italian mainland is Messina, which, next to Palermo, is the most important commercial city of Sicily. To combat the invasion, Axis troops were reported steaming across the Straits of Messina, here only two miles wide.

GIGANTIC aerial attack by 100 Liberator bombers on Taormina, which preceded the Allied landing on Sicily, completely demolished Axis military headquarters there. This view of Taormina shows the Straits of Messina, across which lies the Italian mainland, about 20 miles away.

The San Domenico hotel in Taormina, which housed the Axis high command, and the post office building which served as headquarters for the island's telephone and telegraph facilities, were destroyed.

SICILY'S capital, Palermo, is her largest city and chief seaport. Situated on the north side of the island, it is a modern city with a population of 400,000. A popular tourist resort before the war, it is built in the form of an amphitheater.

TOUGHNESS

DANIEL DE LUCE, war correspondent, tells of Gen. Dwight E. Eisenhower driving along and noticing a military police sergeant at the side of the road, in such a perfect salute that the general stopped to talk to him. He stood straight as a ramrod, with unwavering eyes.

"Are your MP's tough enough for you?" asked the general. "Yes sir," was the prompt reply. "Well," said the general, "if they're tough enough for you, they're tough enough for me." And he drove off, leaving "the proudest non-com in the whole American army."

Now how about a little more toughness for civilians? They need it as much as anybody.

HITLER'S HEALTH

THERE are reports again that Adolf Hitler is laid up with a nervous breakdown. It is an old story, but it might be true this time. Hitler seems to be a type of genius capable of great brilliancy and endurance along certain lines, but always hovering on the edge of insanity.

If the Devil is getting him now, it is fate richly deserved. Probably no man in all history has spread so much evil in the world and produced so much human misery. He seems to be an extreme type of megalomaniac (alias big head) with a "messianic complex." But unfortunately his messianism has been the complete opposite of what is ordinarily associated with that sacred word.

He has preached evil and wrought evil until, over a large part of Europe, love and kindness and generosity and the other virtues have been almost wiped out. If he had his way, the civilization that has been slowly raising humanity from its bestial beginning would soon be wiped out. A chosen few would exert evil dominion over the earth until they themselves were destroyed by their own vicious excesses.

Well, so long Adolf! If your time hasn't come yet, it will. Your deluded followers are already having, literally, a hell of a time.

NATIONAL CONTRASTS

CHINESE, asked why his people, with their superior numbers, had not overwhelmed the Japanese long ago, replied: "We study and revere our philosophers, who lived by seeking truth. The Japanese honor their samurai, who live by their sharp swords."

Of the two the Japanese sound at first the more practical. But are they in the long run? If they are, all the lessons of good conduct taught in our homes and churches will have to be revised.

The coal miners at last are all going back to work, and with God's help and John L. Lewis' permission maybe they'll stay there.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

PRESIDENT PLANS WEEDING

WASHINGTON—The President has been looking forward to the next sixty days, with Congress out of the picture, to do some weeding in his own Administration garden.

There are a lot of weeds which he wants to pull—chiefs of departments and other personnel weeds—and he has been telling friends that he is going to pull them.

One reason the President moves slowly in problems of personnel is not only because he has affection for his friends, but also because he says there is no use replacing a man with a vacancy. He wants to have a good successor picked out beforehand.

So, with Congress away, the President has been looking forward to concentrating on getting some new men in his Administration—a problem which his advisers all agree sorely needs attention.

They predict that some good plants may get mixed up with the weeds and get pulled also. Even Jesse Jones and Henry Wallace may be subjected to a certain degree of pulling.

Note: The President has felt particularly zesty regarding personnel problems since he wrote the letter firing Chester Davis. He especially liked the last paragraph of that letter in which he told Chester that there was no use in his remaining to formulate the 1944 farm program since he wouldn't be here to carry it out, and that would mean real division of authority—a subject that Chester had been carping to Congress about.

"THE WOMEN"

When you see Congresswoman Clare Luce out at dinner in Washington you can understand how and why she wrote "The Women," side-splitting drama of women's cattiness at Reno. The men, in Washington, swarm around her. The women don't.

Swishing into Mrs. Edward Stotesbury's home the other evening swaddled in endless yards of pink chiffon, Mrs. Luce was escorted by handsome Australian Lieut. Gen. V. A. H. Sturdee, head of the Australian Military Mission.

Mrs. Stotesbury was in the act of throwing a compliment at equally lovely Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, wife of Woodrow Wilson's Attorney General. Mrs. Palmer, slightly embarrassed, passed off the compliment with:

"You know, Mrs. Stotesbury is really my press agent."

"Do you need a press agent?" inquired Mrs. Luce, whose husband publishes Time, Life and Fortune.

"No more than you," shot back Mrs. Palmer. "You married a pretty good one."

JONES VS. WALLACE

Re the Jesse Jones-Henry Wallace Fight:

A lot of people have the idea that Jesse Jones is the great champion of Big Business and the Board of Economic Warfare is the New Deal fighter for the under-dog. But the inside fact is that the BEW is just as much for business as Jesse, and is loaded down with executives from private business.

Interesting fact is that the BEW was about the only outfit which didn't have its appropriation cut by Congress, which means that it was the only outfit which didn't have a big lobby buttonholing Congressmen to vote against it. (Unfortunately on Page Six)

DIET AND HEALTH

Balance Worker's Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

CERTAINLY a great deal of the success of our war effort depends upon keeping the industrial worker in the highest degree of efficiency, and certainly the highest degree of efficiency depends primarily upon his food and nutrition.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Studies are being made by trained nutritionists of the quality of industrial workers' food all over the country. The meals which are furnished by the factory itself are usually well-balanced from the nutritional standpoint. The foods sold in a company canteen are not necessarily so, especially if the selection is left to the workers' taste and appetite. For instance, signs reading "Candy bars sold throughout the plant are a definite aid to the health and efficiency of our employees," and "Employees' nourishment afforded by candy dispensed through canteen" are not statements with which scientific nutritionists can agree.

Candy, pastry and soft drinks have a very limited nutritional value. It is perhaps true that candy lessens fatigue, but only for a short while and it may take away appetite for more nutritious or wholesome foods.

A Good Lunch Menu

A dinner plate or lunch box prepared at home or provided by local merchants supplies the great majority of industrial workers with their lunches. Restaurants, lunch wagons, refreshment stands, and automatic feeding machines also play a large part.

A rough formula for evaluating lunches is the following: A good lunch includes all three of the following items: milk, fruit or vegetable, and a main dish—meat or fish.

Fair is lacking one of these three items. Poor is lacking two or all three items.

A survey of dietary conditions in industry showed that only 10 to 25 per cent of the employees of 33 large plants consumed milk. There is no reason to doubt that this estimate applies to industry as a whole.

In most plant cafeterias a "daily special" is served for 25 to 30 cents. Most of the employees select this daily special. Estimating the ingredients alone, it would appear that most of these daily specials are of a high nutritive value, but in the preparation—through cooking, pouring of water and fluids that have accumulated in cooking, and with the food standing for hours—a considerable amount of vitamin content may be lost.

Carefully Selected Meal

A carefully selected meal consisting of tomato juice, meat, potatoes, carrots, whole-wheat bread, butter, milk and a custard pudding can be prepared so that there is little loss of vitamin content, but it is estimated that this would cost 50 cents rather than 30 cents.

These findings, which I emphasize again were made by extremely careful nutrition experts, would indicate that industrial plants could profitably exercise more care in the supervision of the diet which their workers eat. There is no question that if improvement occurs in the diet, it will also bring about improvement in the efficiency of the worker.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. H.: What disease causes palpitation of the heart, smothering and choking after meals? Will x-ray pictures and other examinations show when gallstones are present in every case?

Answer: Palpitation of the heart is almost always a nervous affection, is not of any serious import. The diagnosis of gallstones is still only fairly satisfactory. The two questions of whether gallstones are present, or whether there are no gallstones can be answered only in about 75 per cent of instances by x-ray.

T. Y.: What is hemato-porphyrinuria of the liver?

Answer: Porphyrin is an organic crystal which sometimes accumulates in the bile in such quantity as to cause a color, resembling gallstones. It is also excreted in the urine, turning the urine red after exposure to light.

T. A. H.: Can an inflamed diverticulum be cured without an operation? What foods may be eaten?

Answer: I presume you mean a diverticulum of the sigmoid or lower portion of the bowel. Many of these get well without operation. Barium sulphate suspension enemas are valuable in clearing them up. Bland, semi-solid, pureed, non-roughage foods are indicated.

In the Sky

THE PERIOD between July 3rd and August 11 is sometimes known as the dog-days. The early explanation of the unusually hot weather which often comes at this time was an astronomical one, or, actually, an astronomical superstition.

The term dog-days was derived from an association of this hot weather with the dog-star, Sirius, the brightest star in the sky and one which we see in the Winter heavens. During this period in July and August the dog-star is high in the daytime sky, apparently near the sun. The ancient weather men believed that Sirius mingled its rays with those of the sun and by its great brilliance and supposed high temperature added to the heat of the season.

Sirius had come originally to be called the dog-star because it served, at the time of its heliacal rising (rising with the sun) as a warning (as a barking dog would) to the Egyptians—telling them of the imminence of the yearly rising of the Nile and the inundation of their fields.

Be sure and watch for Venus as it nightly grows brighter. It remains the evening star and on the 15th of the month transits at 3:01 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. This would be a good time to watch for the bright planet in the

Leave My Heart Alone

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

KAREN BELL, wealthy and lovely, lives in Palm Beach, as does PAUL WYATT, her sweetheart since childhood.

YESTERDAY: Karen finds herself wondering about the rather insolent stranger she met by accident, but promises Paul that they will announce the date of their wedding.

CHAPTER THREE

ONE REASON—perhaps almost the main one—why Karen had agreed to Paul's suggestion that their engagement be announced at the Moonlight Festival was her father. Paul had said that he had talked it over with her dad—in quite the approved old-fashioned manner, and that he believed it would make her father happy to have matters settled.

"You practically have it all settled without me," Karen laughingly had said. But Paul had played his trump card in bringing in Jim Bell.

Karen adored the big, bluff, hearty man who had been both father and mother to his two motherless daughters, who had piled up an enormous fortune without help from any man, whose temper was as unpredictable and lively as a tropical storm, and whose heart was as soft, especially where his daughters were concerned, as a raindrop.

Karen knew that this same staunch heart had nearly broken all over again—the first time having been at the early death of his beloved wife—when her sister, Denise, had married. Therefore, Karen was determined that her own marriage should be one to bring her father satisfaction and heart's ease. And Paul Wyatt was everything that any man could ask for in a son-in-law—or that any girl could ask for in a husband. Karen tacked on hastily, as if to make amends to Paul for having placed her father first in her thoughts.

Jim Bell had never, in six long years, been able to forgive his older daughter for her runaway marriage. It was not just that he had felt that Denise had been a riding master in a girl's finishing school at the time—but Jim had been convinced that "that foreigner," as he always referred to Denise's husband, had been a fortune hunter and therefore, in a self-made man's estimation, a no-account at all.

This first impression had proved all too true. Raoul had brazenly admitted that he had married Denise because her father was a wealthy man. He had explained that he had had to make such a marriage in order to save and preserve his ancestral estate. For, besides being a riding master, Raoul also was a count with a run-down castle waiting to receive him and his bride somewhere in one of the many small countries of the Balkans.

This last was really why Jim never had been able to forgive that elopement or bestow his blessing, not even after six long years. Perhaps if the young couple had remained in this country—and Jim had used all the persuasion and influence he could wield—some of that bitterness might have melted. But Count Duffree had insisted he must return to his own country and people and that his wife must become one with them. So Jim Bell had given Denise a considerable dowry, extracting a promise to keep in touch with him and to remember that she could come home, if she came alone, whenever she chose.

Denise had never come back. She had only written a few lines at set intervals, such as holiday greetings, an announcement five years ago of the birth of a son. And so the bitterness in Jim Bell's heart had frozen into a solid wall of stone. He felt that he had lost this daughter more than if she had been taken from him in death. Her name was never mentioned in the household; not because it was forbidden, as Raoul's was, but because the weight of grief at its sound was unbearable. Karen had shared this weight, too. She could not forgive her sister for adding to the emptiness of their father's life.

"I'll never do anything to make him unhappy," Karen summed up these wandering thoughts that had pressed back upon her through a somewhat sleepless night and again when she woke the following morning, deciding to slip out of bed and take an early morning dip before anyone else was up. "I'd marry an octopus—if it would please my dad and help make things up a bit to him. I'd never marry at all, if there was no one like Paul, who is practically the same as a son to him now. I'd gladly sacrifice my own happiness, my life, in fact, for Jim."

She smiled at the grimness and improbability of this last, but somehow it made her heart feel lighter. Not that she was heavy-hearted on such a glorious morning, with the sun sparkling like diamonds as she ran over the wide beach toward the little dancing, welcoming waves, but because she decided that, like Paul, she was glad everything was definite now between them—her whole future life mapped out.

The sleeplessness had been partly due to the churning questioning of her mind. She had not been sure—no, not even after she had given Paul her word and had exchanged their usual goodnight kiss—that she wanted to be rushed into anything. After all, there was plenty of time. She was barely 20. Though lots of girls married that young. And it wasn't as if she were going to marry a stranger. Paul was so dear to her. But marriage was a very grave step. Karen did not regard it lightly as might other girls as young and modern as she, no doubt because of what her sister's marriage had caused. That had made not only an indelible impression, but it also made it imperative that Karen's marriage must, in every way, be right.

"It couldn't be anything else with Paul," she thought, giving herself up to the cooling balm of the fresh salty water, letting it wash away all misgivings, if indeed her slight apprehensions could be classified as such.

She did not ask herself if she loved Paul Wyatt. She took that for granted, as did Paul himself. They were so very fond of each other, so used to each other—so right for each other in every way. If there was another kind of love, tempestuous, unreasoning, such as Denise must have felt to elope with a man so removed in many ways from herself, such as caused other women and men to give up kingdoms, yes, and even happiness itself, as well as family and country and friends, Karen had never thought about it—or been awakened to such outside forces, either. She took her love for granted, just as she took her perfect world. It would be as smooth, as serene, as life had always treated her, as the ocean in which she relaxed her young body, floating gently on the bobbing waves, eyes turned up to a sky as cloudless and untroubled as her soul.

It was in such a mood, refreshed in spirit as well as body, that she returned to the shore. She was surprised to see that someone else was there on the beach at this early hour of the morning. Not just because of the hour, but because this particular stretch of beach was private, lined as it was with the enormous estates of the rich winter residents for miles and miles. Though not many of these had been unboarded as yet this year; the "season" had scarcely begun and, besides that, many of the northern people would not come south to open their palatial homes because of the impending threat of war.

Still it could be some one of their neighbors, or even one of their servants—it was the figure of a man approaching Karen as, wet and dripping, she slipped into her woolly white beach robe. That she had left lying in the small frond-thatched sun shelter. It could even be Paul, although Karen was not expecting him, as Paul was not overly fond of the surf.

The man came on, head bent, as though lost in thought, not even glancing up as he occasionally tossed a small shell, evidently taken from his pockets, into the sea. But, though so absorbed, his walk was spry and purposeful, almost the steady, unbroken tread of an athlete bent on pursuing a set training pace, a pace that was broken, however, when he reached Karen, to stop abruptly, looking up at last and apparently to find himself as surprised at this encounter as she. For it was the young man of the trailer again.

Karen was the first to break that startled silence. She said, "Hello, how are you this morning?" partly to make up for having been so snobbish the day before, partly from astonishment at seeing him so soon again, here on her stretch of private beach. And she had never expected to see him anywhere, ever again.

Words of Wisdom

Everyone wishes to have truth on his side, but it is not every one that sincerely wishes to be on the side of truth.—Whately.

Hints on Etiquette

If a friend is ill in the hospital, don't send flowers, as the shortage of nurses makes it impossible for those on duty to take care of them. Send cards, letters, etc., to show you are thinking of your friend, and flowers may be sent when the patient is at home again.

Today's Horoscope

If this is the date of your birth, you are dependable, affectionate, and possess sound judgment. You are mild-mannered and avoid conflicts and obstacles. You are sensitive to praise and blame. You will have a happy, contented home life. This morning pay bills and straighten out difficult matters that accumulate on your desk. Put your ideas into workable shape for future use. Late this evening you may hear an amazing broadcast about scientific research and new inventions. Good results should come from these developments.

Capital Tops in Terrors For Hapless Pedestrians

Columnist Wonders if Gas Really Crueler Than Bullet

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The nation's capital is a freak city. It evolves the queerest suggestions and arguments. It is characterized by conditions that could not exist anywhere else in the country. It contradicts itself in every imaginable way.

Doubtless, its oddities are due largely to the fact that it has not any government of its own but is regulated locally by congress, which amuses itself, to a great extent, by prescribing rules for its own membership's entertainment, and changes them so fast that nobody knows, from day to day, just what they are.

The diplomatic corps is a complicating element, too. These foreign plenipotentiaries are numerous and conspicuous and their behavioristic ideas are imported into our capital by them from every conceivable out-of-the-way place on earth.

For instance, they are entirely out of sympathy with our automotive traffic requirements, paying no attention to our speed limitations, lights at street intersections or parking specifications. Seeing them disregard every safety precaution tempts our native drivers to do likewise, with the result that Washington's thoroughfares notoriously are the most dangerous in the land, alike for pedestrians and for folk in our multiplicity of cars.

Gas is not very readily obtainable for our domestic citizenry just now, which is a mercy from the standpoint of those of us who travel afoot. The diplomatic contingent, however, being privileged characters, can get all the fuel they want, and the shortage for others simply gives them a freer hand.

But why, you ask, do not the police take a hand in this situation? Ah, that is a second eccentricity of life in the District of Columbia. An accredited diplomat, in our midst from abroad, is not subject to any American law. He can commit, not only a misdemeanor, but a crime, up to and including murder, and we cannot call him to account for it. We can demand his recall by his home government, but that is all. It is a world-wide custom from which there are no exceptions.

Well, a diplomat does not often commit a murder, but he makes a decided business of disregarding our auto regulations. Then, when he is pinched, he claims diplomatic immunity, and it is not really worth while to make an international incident out of such a case.

● SPEAKING OF GAS, for automobiles, calls to mind the dispute over the legitimacy of poison gas employment in actual warfare.

It is supposed to be an exceedingly dirty trick. Even those who are accused of it hotly deny their guilt. Yet they are perfectly willing to admit that they fight with guns and bombs. Nevertheless, Washington is greatly agog over the poison gas issue. There are military authorities who reason that, if the Axis powers are going to use the stuff, we must use it likewise. Others say no—we should not do anything so atrocious anyhow.

What an argument! If killing an enemy is according to Hoyle, what difference does it make to him how it is done, provided it is made as painless as possible? Torturing him ought to be banned, of course. A nice, lethal gas is painless, though. It may hurt less than a slug through the gizzard.

A dusty rose crepe frock was chosen by the bride for her wedding. With it she wore a white faille redingote and white accessories. A single orchid formed her lovely corsage. The couple was unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Brown of Adelphi, parents of the bride, were hosts at a reception at their home immediately after the ceremony. Mrs. Brown received in a black jersey dress with white accessories, while Mrs. Lesher, mother of the bridegroom, was in a light blue gabardine suit with white accessories.

The former Miss Brown is a graduate of Circleville high school and has been associated with the Midland Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Columbus.

Mr. Lesher was graduated from Ohio State university where he became a member of Theta Chi fraternity. He is associated with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in Akron where he and his bride will make their home after July 15 at 949 Dopler street.

Francis X. Miller was best man. Charles J. Marzluft and Frank W. Grosh, brother and cousin of the bridegroom were ushers.

Birthday Dinner
Mrs. John Seimer, 520 Elm avenue, was honored Sunday at a dinner at her home, the affair marking her seventy-first birthday anniversary. The gathering was arranged by her daughter, Mrs. James Pierce, Pickaway township.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Leist, Amanda; Harley Seimer, Mrs. Mary Ayers, 478 Half avenue, mother of Mrs. Seimer; promotions and legal affairs, but certain opposing forces are aligned against desired success and happy development of brilliant ideas and progress. Placate these by reason, make clear and logical efforts to solve peculiar difficulties, as the mind may be obscure and speech caustic.

Those whose birthday it is may have excellent opportunity for brilliant success and progress in new directions, especially in connection with writings, publicity, travel, communications. However there is some group of public antagonism trying to block such achievement. This should be amicably composed, and with logic and reason, not erratic moves or sarcastic and bitter remarks. Be polite.

A child born on this day may have brilliant ideas, and unusual versatility, particularly in intellectual professions. It may have a caustic tongue.

Crocodiles in Print

A REPTILIAN print may not sound like the happiest choice in the world for a lovely lady's best dress, but take it from this department, it looks dandy. For it's black crocodiles which curl humorously in printed pattern over the cocoa-colored brown silk from which this afternoon suit is made.

The effect is of an Eastern print, very suitable for a sphinx mood, and the ensemble itself is one for smart wedding guests and diners-out in restaurants. Little pinches of the fabric are fixed in a quilted drape effect to detail the jacket front.

IMPORTANT
NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave ½ inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about ¼ turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

OHIO COLLEGES USE NAVY MEN IN ATHLETICS

MANSFIELD, July 12—Ohio colleges with Navy training programs have agreed to continue athletics for the duration, George Gauthier, athletic director at Ohio Wesleyan university, reported today.

Colleges represented at the meeting in Mansfield at which the decision was made were, in addition to Ohio Wesleyan, Baldwin-Wallace, Bowling Green, Case, Denison, Miami, Oberlin and Wooster. Also present but not participating were John Carroll of Cleveland and DePaul of Greencastle, Ind.

Possibility of service men participating in the college sports was announced by Gauthier, who said:

"No league was formed since the Navy does not permit its men to play in athletic leagues."

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Strawberry Sanitation in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

MANY DISEASES can be prevented in the Victory garden through proper garden hygiene which involves carefully cleaning up and burning of all garden trash and diseased foliage. Keeping plants strong and healthy by cultivation, feeding and watering is another important phase of garden sanitation, for sickly plants fall prey to many diseases which healthy plants are able to resist.

Leaf blight of strawberries, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is a common diseased condition of the leaves which rarely attacks new and thrifty plantings. To avoid strawberry blight set out only healthy plants and give them fertile, well drained soil. Another means of avoiding blight is to grow the more resistant varieties of strawberries such as Premier, Fairfax and Dorsett. To control leaf blight, which is also known as leaf spot, spray with a 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture before the blossoms open and after the fruits have been harvested. Sometimes when powdery mildew is present the spraying will have to begin early in the season with Bordeaux mixture. Powdery mildew produces a white tawny-like growth on the leaves as well as a curling of the foliage, as illustrated in the Garden-Graph.

CARDINALS ADD TO MARGIN OVER DODGER OUTFIT

St. Louis Wins Double Bill As Brooklyn Splits; Reds Cop Two Contests

BY JOHN CASHMAN

NEW YORK, July 12—Now, as never before, the intricate inner workings of the first-place St. Louis Cardinals and the second-place-but-slipping Brooklyn Dodgers are revealed as two totally different mechanisms. While the St. Louis dynamo purrs along smoothly, with never a squeak or a groan, the Brooklyn machine cranes crazily through the baseball scene, nuts and bolts dropping en route, the driver screaming bloody murder, and the rest of the crew in the back seat shrieking protests over the jostling.

Yesterday, these two outfits went their different ways, in different fashion. The St. Louis machine glided to a 5 1/2 game lead with two victories over the Boston Braves while Brooklyn's Toomer-trolley traveled in circles with a split decision against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The league leaders scored their fourth straight shutout in the 3 to 0 opening victory when Harry Gumbert pitched six-hit ball. The nightcap, which took 11 innings for the Cardinals' 9 to 6 triumph, was won on Whitey Kurosaki's double with the sacks clogged. The Braves made only six hits in this game off Max Lanier, Howie Kirt and Harry Brecheen, but one of these was a three-run homer by Chuck Workman, while Johnny McCarthy whacked in three runs with two singles.

The Dodgers, in losing their first game to the Pirates, 3 to 2, stranded runners on base in every inning, 13 in all. The Pirates pushed to victory in the sixth inning when Bob Elliott's triple produced the winning tally. In the second game, the Dodgers triumphed, 5 to 4, with an eighth-inning rally in which they scored three runs. Johnny Allen, who relieved Les Webber in the sixth, was credited with the nightcap twirling victory.

Homers Factors

While the Dodgers were clanking along, their brothers across the river, the New York Giants, were engaged in a home run feast with the Chicago Cubs. The Giants won the first contest, 4 to 3, and the Cubs the second, 4 to 3. Both games were decided by homers.

Ernie (Schnozzola) Lombardi won the first game with a screaming homer to break a tenth inning tie, while Bill Nicholson whacked out a seventh-inning circuit clout with one aboard in the nightcap for the victory. Manager Mel Ott also hit a homer for the Giants.

The Cincinnati Reds took both ends of a double-header from the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 4 and 14 to 2. Bucky Walters won his first game since May 26 in the opener while the Cincinnati pounded the Phillies for 11 runs in the first three innings.

Moving over into the American league, the Detroit Tigers retained second place by splitting a double bill with the Philadelphia Athletics, dropping the first, 4 to 3, and winning the second, 9-4. The largest Detroit crowd of the season attended this twin bill—31,540. The Athletics produced two runs in the sixth, one in the eighth and another in the ninth for the win. In the nightcap, Tommy Bridges hurled a three-hitter, only 29 batters facing him, as his clubmates collected 14 hits off three Philadelphia moundsmen.

Candini Loses

The Washington Senators lost the curtain-raiser to the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 1, then won the second, 6 to 4, on a two-run tenth-inning rally. Milo Candini, who was trying for his eighth straight twirling win of the season in the opener, suffered his first defeat. Al Smith went the route for the Indians in the nightcap, allowing five hits.

The New York Yankees strengthened their grip on the league lead with two triumphs over the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 0 and 8 to 6, although it took five Yankee pitchers to eke out the nightcap victory. Spud—Chandler yielded only six hits in the first game, while his teammates pounded out 16 hits.

The St. Louis Browns, who are reported to be pennant conscious, battled the Boston Red Sox around something fierce, winning two games, 8 to 7 and 4 to 2. The first game went 12 innings and both teams collected 16 hits, but the Browns made one count in the last half of the twelfth. In the nightcap, the Browns piled up an early lead, Potter allowing only five hits to clinch the victory.

All-Star Game Booked Tuesday Night; Many Bright Stars Missing

NEW YORK, July 12—The bickering between the St. Louis Browns and the New York Yankees, the feuding among the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the Major League pennant races all were interrupted today as baseball made its annual pause for the grand gesture known as the all-star game to be played tomorrow night under the lights at Philadelphia.

For three days, or through Wednesday, the heat of the pennant campaigns and the personal darning will be shunted into the background, if not entirely forgotten, while the hand-picked stars of the American and National league resume mid-season inter-circuit hostilities for the 11th time.

Big names have gone from many rosters; the gloom of the war will hang over the thing, but permanence of the all-star game may be moulded in these years by the things it is doing for the war effort. Those few critics who have dented it as an empty exhibition that serves only to disrupt the baseball season by a three-day layoff can't scream above a whisper at a contribution of $75,000 or so into the home front kitty.

All Pay Way

This is the one to which everybody from the bat boys to the umpires and not overlooking officials, players and the press—pay their way into the park. Meagre expenses are extracted from the grand total and all the rest is bounced on one hop into the War Fund.

Despite the absence of many of the past heroes, the game will lack little in color and nothing from a competitive standpoint. And by the way, when is the National league going to win another game?

Of those 10 played so far, the National league has copied exactly three, making this something like the World Series records, which how the American so predominant in recent years.

There was a break in the World Series last season when the St. Louis Cardinals, free-wheeling under a shot of inspiration, with speed, with pitching and with gameness, stopped the then seemingly invincible New York Yankees, and perhaps this one will be a repetition in the victory column for the National.

Manager Billy Southworth of

INDIANS CLIMB BACK TO PERCH IN ASSOCIATION

By International News Service
The Indianapolis Indians today again assumed the top rung of the American Association ladder after winning the nightcap of a twin bill with the Minneapolis Millers 4 to 2. The Millers took the first game 7 to 0.

Credit goes to Southpaw Jim Trexler, who pitched his tenth straight win. Trexler also did his share of slugging to help the Indians regain first place. He obtained two of the Hoosiers' nine hits, scored one run in the second and then tallied a run himself in the fifth. Owen Scheetz was the loser. Lefebvre was winner for the Millers in the first game.

Meanwhile the Columbus Red Birds were stepping back into the pennant race, advancing two games by taking both ends of a doubleheader from the Kansas City Blues, 4 to 2 and 9 to 1. Ted Wilks hurled the first winner and Preacher Roe the second. This placed the Birds solidly in third place, only four games behind the first place Indians.

Milwaukee found itself on the losing end of both games of yesterday's twin bill also which the Toledo Mud Hens took with scores of 4 to 3 and 5 to 0.

At Louisville, the Colonels and the St. Paul Saints halved their twin bill, Louisville taking the first game by a 11 to 0 score, but having the tables turned in the second 8 to 4. St. Paul's win in the second fray was due to the slugging of Joe Vitter, who, emerged from the hospital after being hurt Saturday, slammed out a triple and a homer to point the way for his teammates.

WILLIAMSPORT OUTFIT WINNER IN TWO JOUSTS

Williamsport softball players won a doubleheader in the City League Sunday, knocking off the Panthers 6 to 5 in the first test and winning a 4-3 contest from the Lutherans in the nightcap.

In one other game played Sunday the South Bloomfield team was victorious 12 to 6 over the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

All three games were interesting.

New Curfew Law Aimed At Serious City Juvenile Problem

JUDGE WELDON SEES NEED FOR PROMPT ACTION

Court Says Children Should Be In Homes At Reasonable Hour

POLICE ASKED TO HELP
Question May Be Put Up To Councilmen In Next Session

A movement is under way in Circleville, with Juvenile Judge Lemuel B. Weldon in an active role, to have the city's curfew law revised and put into operation in an effort to break up a juvenile problem which has become serious.

Judge Weldon has conferred with City Solicitor Joe W. Adkins concerning curfew laws now on Circleville's ordinance book, and he has learned that a law which is not being enforced calls for all children under 16 to be off the streets by 7:30 o'clock each evening. The bell in city hall tower is supposed to be sounded at that time, the judge was told.

"This hour is too early, everyone realizes," the judge declared, "but I am in favor of reenacting the ordinance so that it will get children off the street by 9 or 10 o'clock each evening."

Favors Curfew
Judge Weldon said that enactment of a curfew ordinance is up to city council and other city officials. "I am in favor of a curfew being operated," the judge said, "and I am in favor of having laws keeping children off streets enforced."

The judge called attention to legislation being set up in other cities of Ohio in which parents of youngsters found in streets late at night are being penalized. He said he is in favor of the same type of law being enacted here. "Parents and not children should be penalized," the judge pointed out.

Judge Weldon said that Columbus is considering a rigid curfew law in an effort to keep juveniles off streets at night, and that Midland and Hamilton have already voted such legislation. In all three cities, he pointed out, the parents of children "running the streets" are ordered into court for fines. The local judge is in favor of a warning for the first offense and a fine for the second, the fine becoming heavier with each subsequent violation.

Police Aid Asked
The juvenile judge called on Circleville police to assist his court. "The word of a policeman goes a long way in guiding children," Judge Weldon said. "Circleville police can be a big help in clearing up the juvenile situation if they can find time from their other work to warn some of the youngsters who are up town late at night to get off the street."

Judge Weldon said that John Kerns, juvenile officer in his court, is doing everything he can to clear up the juvenile problem. The juvenile question and the possibility of the curfew being put into operation again may be discussed before council at its next meeting, July 21.

SCHOOL CHIEFS ARE INVITED TO WAR CONFERENCE

School administrators from all schools in Circleville and Pickaway county have been invited to attend a war conference to be conducted Wednesday and Thursday at Ohio State university, Columbus.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, plans to attend, and he said Monday that heads of all local and rural schools are being urged to be present.

Theme of the institute for which registration is free is "Problems of Ohio Schools in Wartime and After". Panel discussions with further discussion on the floor will make up the program.

Not all the sessions will be of a business nature. Thursday night male administrators will attend a roundup at Ohio State university golf course at which the speakers will include Governor John W. Bricker, President Howard L. Bevis of O. S. U., and John B. Fullen, alumni secretary at Ohio State. Women administrators will have a dinner of their own at the university Faculty Club.

Ross has trained a city unit of 15 men, and reports now that 20 more are signed up and ready to start training.

The patrolman will instruct the group first in general duties, with first aid, fire and gas defense and other phases of training to come later.

Importance of attending the Monday evening meeting was stressed by the instructor.

"A" GAS RATION BOOK HOLDERS URGED TO FILE

More than 2,500 Pickaway county motorists who have "A" gasoline ration books were warned Monday by Elmer Stebleton, chief clerk of the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office, that unless they have their applications for renewals in the hands of the office before Thursday, July 15, they will be without gasoline coupons on July 21. July 21 is the date present "A" rations expire.

Stebleton pointed out that the office staff and its volunteer force have 6,000 applications to process before July 21. Only 3,500 of this total have been received to date.

Processing is moving along fairly well, Mr. Stebleton said, volunteer help playing a big role. Members of the Business and Professional Women's club are to appear at the office Monday evening to help for the second time. Kiwanians will be present Tuesday evening and members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be on hand Wednesday. Mr. Stebleton planned to contact Rotary club officials Monday to have members of this unit appear later in the week.

The board clerk warned that any application received later than July 15 will be too late for processing by July 21.

HOG RAISERS ASKED TO CUT DOWN ON SALES

With hogs again piling up at terminal markets and at other points throughout the country, the War Meat Board is sending appeals to all farmers, including those of Pickaway county, to reduce their marketings. Many packers find their plant facilities congested and are unable to take care of any more hogs for the remainder of this week. Consequently, farmers are urged to make sure that there is a sales outlet for their hogs before making shipment.

The War Meat Board, with headquarters in Chicago, points out that the proper place for hogs in view of crowded processing facilities is in the country, inasmuch as there is an inadequate supply of corn available in most markets to feed unsold hogs. This lack of corn and the hot weather in most parts of the country could result in heavy death losses.

The government's support price applies only to good and choice 240 to 270 pound butcher hogs and therefore any unfinished hogs would not share in the support program.

The price of hogs at Chicago declined 25 cents in the late trade Saturday and was nearly at the support level of $13.75. Producers were reminded by the War Meat Board that their cooperation in holding back hogs last week resulted in an immediate strengthening of prices, and there is every reason to believe that similar cooperation at this time will have a like result. The board reiterated its opinion that hogs are good property, well worth support prices and there is no justification for their hurried liquidation.

Packers have been active buyers in the present heavy run, but their processing and refrigerating facilities, coupled with the shortage of labor, makes it physically impossible for them to handle hogs in the volume they are now arriving.

PIGGY IMLER HELD ON BAD CHECK CHARGE

Harold (Piggy) Imler, 25, of 239 East Ohio street, is being held in county jail pending hearing before Squire B. T. Hedges on charges of issuing checks without funds. Imler was arrested on a complaint filed by Ned Buskirk, South Scioto street.

The squire said Monday that he isn't certain just what to do in Imler's case. The youth has received notice from the Pickaway county Selective Service board to report for induction with the July contingent. If the court holds him for the grand jury he will not be eligible for induction.

POLICE ARREST SEVEN DRINKERS OVER WEEK-END

Arrest of seven men during the week end on intoxication and disorderly charges was reported Monday by police who said that cases of several of the men will probably be referred to the Pickaway county Selective Service board for action.

Under Draft Act rules all persons of draft age must carry their Selective Service registration cards with them at all times. Three of the men jailed were without cards, including Lennie Rutter, 26, of Watt street, Myron Smith, 39, of Circleville Route 3, and Ted Cyrus, 28, of Chillicothe Route 8.

All their cases will be turned over to Selective Service.

Others lodged in jail were Ray Hamilton, 18, Watt street, who posted $5 bond; Robert Griffey, 52, of Mingo street; William Duey, 54, of Lovers Lane, and Lonnie Pemberton, 48, of Circleville Route 2, who put up $10 bond.

All were arrested Saturday night and early Sunday by Patrolmen Turney Ross and Elmer Merriman and Special Officers Gale Wolfe and George Davis.

ORIENT INMATE SWEEPED TO DEATH IN DARBY CREEK

Willie Hime, 33, an inmate of the Orient institution for feeble-minded since he was 12 years old, drowned Saturday evening in Darby creek near the institution grounds when the stream's fast current pulled him under.

Hime's body was found about an hour after the tragedy by other Orient patients not far from the scene of the drowning. The body was discovered as it was being carried over a shallow point in the stream.

Institution officials told Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Acting Coroner B. T. Hedges that Hime had gone across the stream to pick blackberries. Several other patients were picking berries with him. Returning to the institution, Hime was carrying his berries when the swift current took him under.

Orient authorities told local officials that Hime leaves no surviving relatives.

The body will be buried on the institution grounds.

GOODMANS TOLD SONS HELD AS HUN PRISONERS

Official word that their sons, Burnell M. and Russell M. Goodman, are held prisoners of war in Germany was received during the week end by Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Goodman of Kingston. A telegram from the War department was the first word the Goodmans have received since the War office told them several months ago that their sons were missing in action.

The telegram read: "Report just received through the International Red Cross states that your sons, Burnell M. and Russell M. Goodman, are prisoners of war of the Germany government."

"Letter of information follows from Provost Marshall General Ullo."

The Goodman boys were with an American infantry outfit which was engaged in Tunisian fighting in early February. Other Pickaway county youths captured at the same time told their parents in letters from prison camps that the Goodman boys were captives, but no official word had been received by their parents since the "missing in action" news was received.

The Goodman brothers, who are brothers of Roy Goodman of Circleville, went into service October 22, 1941 with a Pickaway county draftee contingent.
